2 MEN CAPTURED, CONFESS MURDER

Fiedler, Weston Arrested Near Moclips, Wash.

Story of Loll Slaying Told En Route to Jail Here; Each Admits Shot

Trapped on the outskirts of the Chinook Indian reservation near Moclips, Wash., yesterday and returned to Portland, two men who confessed that they shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Ernest Loll on a highway west side road Sunday morning.

George Leonard Fiedler, 23, admitted that he fired twice when the officer, challenged him as he hurried peasants out of season near Stephenson road.

August Ferdinand Weston, 23, confessed that he fired another charge as the dying officer lay helpless on the ground.

Weston Blames Fiedler
Weston, who admitted the murder on route by automobile from the Grays Harbor country, declared that Fiedler forced him to shoot. The two were apprehended at Moclips by Multnomah county deputy sheriffs and Oregon state police.

It was not until the posse cars had crossed the Interstate bridge and were on Union avenue that Weston was silent throughout the day, finally admitted the murder.

"I had to shoot the cop," Fiedler said. "It was him or me."

"I was down off the hill hunting. The officer walked over to the edge of the road and said: 'Stop, or I'll shoot.' I turned and saw his gun leveled at me. I heard a click."

"Next Best Thing"
"I did the next best thing. I shot back. As I climbed up to the road the officer was down, but he was kind of on his elbow moving and backing around. His gun was about 10 feet away. I picked it up and fired. I heard the motor and heard me to hurry."

Weston declared that he was kneeling on the side of the road opposite from Fiedler and that when he saw Deputy Sheriff Loll's car he ran down into the underbrush and hid behind a stump.

"I heard the officer say, 'The car's up.' Weston confessed, 'I heard two shots and a man holler. I couldn't see either George or the officer. I came up on the road, saw the officer lying on the ground, then I didn't know what to do."

"Insane Look" in Eyes
"George said I got into the car. I shot him, G-d-d-n-y. Then I shot. I fired one shot because I was afraid George would shoot me. He had a motorcycle wreck and suffered a fractured skull and I was afraid of him. George had a gony—an insane—look in his eye."

Asked to confirm the statement by Weston that he had been forced by Fiedler to shoot, the latter thought for a moment in which he lifted steel-bound hands to take a puff on a cigarette.

"I don't remember," he said at last.

"How about it?" Deputy Sheriff Gus C. Schirmer asked Weston in his companion's presence.

"He made me shoot," the other youth replied.

"That so?" Schirmer asked Fiedler again.

"You heard him," came the reply.

Gun Theft Unexplained
Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Edgar Christoffersen asked Fiedler, who was arrested to be the calmer, more talkative of the two, why they had

GAMBLING INQUIRY WILL BE RESUMED

Special Prosecutor to Start Work Today

Resumption of the grand jury investigation into Portland gambling today was promised by L. A. Liljeqvist, special prosecutor from the attorney-general's office, who announced yesterday that the probe would be prosecuted vigorously without fear or favor until all possible information had been presented to the secret body.

Mr. Liljeqvist, who has been characterized as one of the ablest prosecutors in the state, arrived in Portland yesterday from Marshfield and spent the afternoon conferring with the grand jury in preparation for the continuance of the investigation, which has been under way for several weeks.

The special prosecutor, who was named by Attorney-General Van Winkle Monday to take over the local investigation, said that it was probable the first of the new batch of witnesses would appear before the grand jury this afternoon.

Citizens Asked to Help

Scope of the investigation and the number of witnesses to be called, Mr. Liljeqvist said, would depend largely on developments in the quiz and the information uncovered.

"The attorney-general's office has no money with which to hire undercover men to investigate gambling here and reports of a police pay-off," he pointed out. "As a result, we will have to depend on the good citizens and law-abiding people of the city to furnish any information which they have."

Mr. Liljeqvist said that he would call on District Attorney Bain to render any assistance he could in the probe by furnishing any available information.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs are still the "hottest" club in baseball.

They demonstrated it conclusively today for the benefit of 47,391 somewhat subdued fanatics and the Detroit Tigers by galloping off with the first game of the 1935 world series, 3 to 0, behind the spectacular pitching by Lonnie Warneke.

Four Hits Yielded

The long, lean right-hander from the Ozarks blanked the American league champions with four hits. Except for one spell of wildness in the fourth inning, Warneke had the Tigers "topping" most of their shots with a sharp-breaking "screw ball." He took the honors in an all-Arkansas pitching duel with Lynn Wood (Schoolboy) Rowe, giant right-hander of the home town, and topped off his superlative performance by equalling a world series record with eight assists.

It was an old-fashioned hurling ball for a double off the delivery of Schoolboy Rowe. A moment later Galan scored the first run. At right, Second Baseman Billy Herman, who follows the ex-coaster in the Chicago batting order, is shown crossing the plate with the second Cub tally, also in the first frame. Mickey Cochrane, Tiger manager and catcher, is watching his fielders handle the ball. (Oregonian-AP Wirephotos.)

PETITION TO ASK AAA REHEARING

Petition for rehearing in the case which led to the voiding of the Oregon agricultural adjustment act in a decision handed down by the state supreme court Tuesday will be filed at once in a "valiant effort" to induce the high court to reconsider and save the 11 marketing codes, it was announced late yesterday by Robert M. Kerr, Portland, counsel for several of the marketing agreements.

His announcement followed a meeting in Multnomah hotel of a large group of Portland ice cream manufacturers, who said effects of the decision already have been noted in deep price cuts by at least two large dealers of the city.

Milk Law Unaffected
Tuesday's decision invalidating the state AAA does not affect legality of the Oregon milk control law, it was declared by Edgar W. Smith, state milk control board chairman, inasmuch as the milk control law was passed in 1933 and delegated specific responsibilities to the milk control board.

Also yesterday creamerymen from throughout this district met at the Heathman hotel to discuss effects

ITALIANS BOMB ETHIOPIAN CITY

Planes Bombard Aduwa; Civilians Killed

League Gets Word of First Aerial Attack Staged By Mussolini

GENEVA, Oct. 3 (AP)—League of nations officials announced today receipt of a communication from Ethiopia, asserting that Aduwa has been bombed by Italian airplanes.

Officials also announced they had received a communication from Italy, declaring that general mobilization in Ethiopia had caused the Italian general staff to decide to adopt certain military measures.

League officials said the note from Emperor Haile Selassie said he received information from Aduwa during the alleged air bombardment that several civilians were killed and several houses destroyed.

The emperor added, league authorities said, "the attack continues."

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 2 (AP)—Nearly 200,000 Ethiopian fighters were reported on the march tonight, some toward the Italian colonial frontier, in anticipation of a general mobilization tomorrow.

Native drums echoing through valleys and mountains will call 10,000,000 men, women and boys into the service in the face of a threatened war with Italy.

(The Addis Ababa correspondent of the Paris Soir reported fighting between Italian and Ethiopian troops had already started in the Mussa Ali—eastern section of Ethiopia and that there have been casualties.)

Troops Meet Tribesmen

(The newspaper, although previous Ethiopian reports said none of the country's troops was in that vicinity, asserted three columns of advancing Italian troops, totaling 25,000 men, fought with irregular Danakil tribesmen. The Italians have not yet met Ethiopian regulars, the report said.)

Emperor Haile Selassie decided upon the mobilization, which he will proclaim from the balcony of the imperial palace, after dispatching a protest to Geneva charging Italy has already invaded his kingdom with 50,000 troops.

Thousands on March

One hundred thousand Ethiopians were reported marching from Gondar toward the Eritrean frontier, where Italy is expected to strike. This vast army was followed by 60,000 warriors from four provinces led by Ras Mulugeta, minister of war. Another 80,000 troops from Jima and Wallaga province were said to be on their way to Addis Ababa to protect the capital.

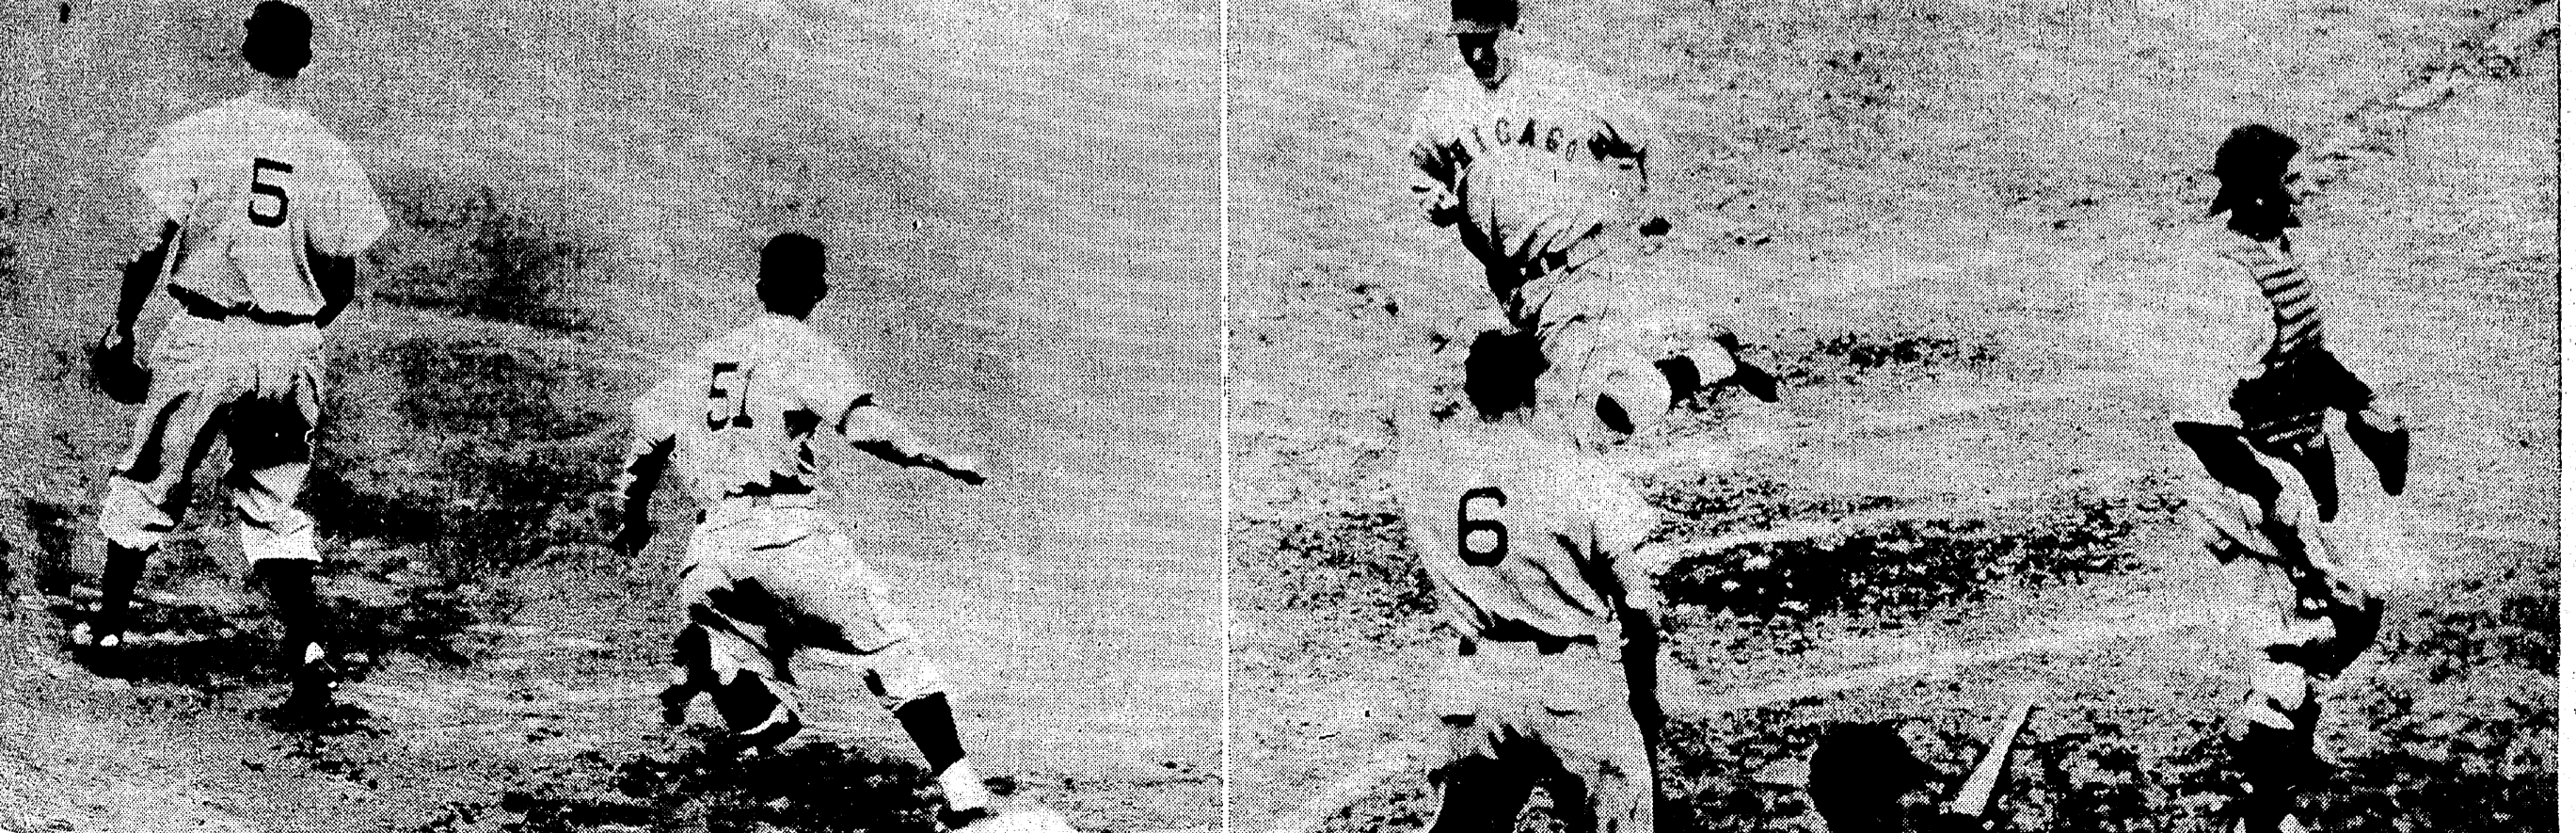

The consul at Aduwa was arrested by Ethiopian officials when he attempted to cross the border into Eritrea, but was later released and is traveling here under armed Ethiopian guard.

Formal Protest Sent

(The text of the protest as received at Geneva follows:
(We inform you for communication to the council and the states members that Italian troops have violated the Ethiopian frontier in the region south of Mount Mussa Ali, in the province of Aussa, between that mountain and the frontier of Ethiopia and French Somaliland and have established themselves in Ethiopian territory, preparing a base for extensive attack.)

(The proximity of the sea to this region and its easy access through the territory of French Somaliland make it possible with the council either to send observers or to obtain confirmation of this violation of Ethiopian territory.

First Action Photos of World Series Opening Game Between Chicago Cubs and Detroit Tigers at Navin Field

While a crowd of more than 47,000 baseball fans were sitting in the stands watching yesterday's initial game for the world's championship, photos were already being flashed across the continent showing action as Chicago clinched the opener in the first inning. Augie Galan, ex-Pacific Coast league star and lead-off man for the Cubs, is shown rounding first base (in the picture at the left) after smacking the ball for a double off the delivery of Schoolboy Rowe. A moment later Galan scored the first run. At right, Second Baseman Billy Herman, who follows the ex-coaster in the Chicago batting order, is shown crossing the plate with the second Cub tally, also in the first frame.
